"Building New Homes on Your Lot or Ours!"

Happy New Year!

American Housing, like most builders, are still having to deal with the current economic slow down like everyone else. The good news is that things seemed to have bottomed out and homes are finally starting to sell again. Nothing to write home about, but buyers do seem a bit more optimistic and the job scenario seems to be getting a little more stable. Banks are still hesitant to loan money, but if you have good credit and job stability, you are in a good position to take advantage of today's economic conditions.

With construction costs and interest rates at unheard of lows, along with the many energy saving designs now being incorporated into our new homes, it appears that now would be a great time to consider buying a new American Housing home.

New Year Resolutions!

A New Year's resolution is a commitment that one makes to better one's life or lifestyle. New Year's day just seems like a great day to start fresh in obtaining one's new goals. A couple of common resolutions are losing weight and stopping smoking, which are both health worthy resolutions. A recent research study shows that 52% of people that actually make New Year resolutions are confident of success with their goals, while only 12% actually achieve their goals. Oh well, thank goodness there is always next year!
